

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's talk about some strange travels!

Learning Outcome

Understand actions, events, and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Have you ever been on a road trip? Where? Who with?
- What's the craziest travel experience you have ever had? What happened?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about relationships, character traits and strange events.
- I can talk about when, where, how or why something was done.
- I can say what happened or what has happened.

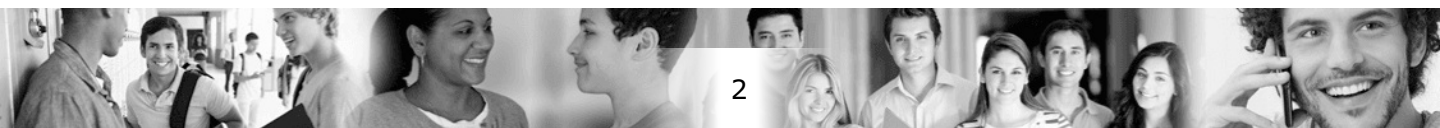

Let's Explore!

Chocolate is my kryptonite.

* If something is your "kryptonite" it means it is your weakness.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Amy: Vanessa, do you have any good stories about Peter?
Peter: Amy!
Vanessa: Oh boy, do I? Peter you remember the time when you fell asleep in a phone booth dressed as Superman?
Peter: Oh boy! I haven't heard you mistell this story in a while.
Amy: What? Oh, I have to hear this story.
Vanessa: One Halloween, Peter went out to a party in the country in hot pursuit of the lady who he was madly in love with at the time.
Peter: Wrong! We went out there together to her friend's party. It was a place where they've always gone for Halloween ever since they were kids. I can't remember the name of the town, though.
Amy: You weren't there, Vanessa?
Vanessa: No, but I come in later.
Vanessa: Anyway, the two of them had a huge row because Peter drank too much.
Peter: No, you've never told this story right. While we were driving out there, she got a speeding ticket because, let's face facts, she drove like a maniac. Anyways, she blamed me for us being late and it completely ruined our evening.
Amy: You didn't say anything to, perhaps, egg her on?
Peter: I told her that her driving would improve if she practiced more at home. At the end of the night, she stormed out of the party because she was furious with me and left me there with people I didn't know. Has this ever happened to you?
Vanessa: Only you, Peter.
Amy: What happened next?
Peter: Well, I got a ride into the small town to the bus station because no one was driving back into the city and I really didn't want to stay there. The problem was the bus station was closed.
Amy: Then what?
Peter: Well, my ride had left, the station was closed, and it was cold and windy outside. It was late and the town was shut down. The only shelter that would block the wind was one of those old stand-up phone booths.
Vanessa: So then he called me and told me to come and get him. By the time I got out there, it was early morning and people were walking around looking at Superman curled up asleep in the phone booth. One older man said to me, "It looks like Superman had a little too much kryptonite last night." I've never laughed so hard in my life.
Peter: Everywhere I go, I try to have a good time.

Let's Practice!

Peter is a great storyteller.

Instructions: Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. She drove like a maniac and got a speeding ticket.
2. She was furious with me and left me there with people I didn't know.
3. Anyway, the two of them had a huge row because Peter drank too much.
4. He was madly in love with her.
5. It was early morning and people were walking around looking at Superman curled up asleep in the phone booth.
6. One older man said to me, "it looks like Superman had a little too much kryptonite last night".

Let's Practice!

Peter is able to describe the events in detail.

Instructions: Underline the correct word to complete the sentence.

1. While we were driving out there, she got a speeding ticket when / because, let's face facts, she drove like a maniac.
2. I told her that her driving would improve that / if she practiced more at home.
3. Peter went out to a party in the country in hot pursuit of the lady who / whose he was madly in love with at the time.
4. At the end of the night, she stormed out of the party because she / if she was furious with me and left me there with people I didn't know.
5. The only shelter that / who would block the wind was one of those old stand-up phone booths.
6. Peter, do you remember the time because / when you fell asleep in the phone booth dressed as Superman?
7. It was a place where / who they've always gone for Halloween ever since they were kids.

Extension Activity

Telling some crazy travel stories!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Think of a strange travel story. The story can be true or fictional.
- Write your story in 250 words.
- Describe where you were, what you were doing and what happened.
- Share your story with a partner.
- Ask for feedback.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write a strange travel story.

☐
☐

I provide details to my story.

☐
☐

I share the story with someone and ask for feedback.

☐
☐

I provide feedback.

☐
☐

Target Words

- hot pursuit (expression): eagerly trying to get someone or something e.g. Peter went out to a party in the country in hot pursuit of the lady who he was madly in love with at the time.
- row (noun): a disagreement, argument or fight e.g. The two of them had a huge row because Peter drank too much.
- to egg her on (verb): to incite or urge; to encourage e.g. You didn't say anything to, perhaps, egg her on?
- shelter (noun): something that gives protection or refuge e.g. The only shelter that would block the wind was one of those old stand-up phone booths.
- to curl up (verb): to lie in a comfortable curved position
e.g. People were walking around looking at Superman curled up asleep in the phone booth.
- to mistell (verb): to tell incorrectly
e.g. I haven't heard you mistell this story in a while.

Learning Points

Adverbial Clauses

An adverbial clause is a dependent clause. It can refer to time, place, condition, contrast, concession, reason, purpose, or result.

Let's review what a dependent clause is: It contains a subject and verb, but cannot stand alone as a sentence. You introduce a dependent clause with conjunctions like because, if, although. Look at the chart for an outline of adverbial clauses:

Describing...	Conjunction	Example
time	when, before, after, until, since, as soon as	When she got home, she was surprised to find her door open.
place	where, wherever	She has always been able to travel wherever she wanted.
cause	because, since	Charles was late because his car broke down.
purpose	so that, in order that	She ran home so that she could be there when her uncle arrived.
result	so ... that, in order that ...	The bus driver drove so fast that I thought we would have an accident.
condition	if, unless	If I hadn't given her a birthday party, she would have spent the day alone.
concession	although, even though	Although Tom is good at math, he made a lot of mistakes on the last test.

Examples:

- Everywhere I go, I try to have a good time.
- I told her that her driving would improve if she practiced more at home.
- She got a speeding ticket because, let's face facts, she drove like a maniac.
- She always goes wherever she wants. At the end of the night, she stormed out of the party because she was furious with me.

Learning Points

The Simple Past vs The Present Perfect Tenses

You use the time expressions this morning/week/month and today with both the Simple Past and Present Perfect tenses. In some cases, it is difficult to know how to use them with both tenses.

You need to consider if those moments are finished or are still happening.

When you look at your morning as a past, completed time period, you use the Simple Past tense.

For example:

I brushed my teeth this morning. (= my morning is finished and I brushed my teeth then)

When your morning includes all of the time up to now, you use the Present Perfect tense.

For example:

I've brushed my teeth this morning. (= my morning is still happening and I don't need to brush my teeth)

In a sentence with the time marker since, you usually use the Simple Past in the time clause and the Present Perfect in the main clause.

For example:

I've been a lot happier since I started my job.

Examples:

- They've always gone out there for Halloween ever since they were kids.
- You've never told this story right.
- Has this ever happened to you?
- I haven't heard you mistell this story in a while.
- I've never laughed so hard in my life.

